

Why should conservation be important to kids?

Conservation should be important to kids because conservation is protection our natural resources and environment for future generations (YOU!) to enjoy.

Conservation is working to protect wild places, wild animals and plants and their habitats (homes), air, water, trees, soil for farming, and open spaces.

Conservation is all about protecting and managing our natural resources and environment so that they are here for future generations (YOU!) to use and enjoy.

The Pacolet Area Conservancy (PAC) is a not-for-profit, land trust organization dedicated to the protection of the scenic, agricultural, natural, and historic resources of our region. PAC helps preserve land by helping protect the land, forever.

Anyone can be a conservationist, even you! If you recycle, don't litter, turn off lights when you leave the room, and don't waste water, you are doing your part to protect and preserve the planet for future generations of kids just like you!
